shltr Led by designer Jennifer Worts of the eponymous @JenniferWortsDesign, this top-to-bottom revamp of a Toronto residence is nothing short of transformational. Originally a patchwork of new and old—and largely stripped of character—Worts re-envisioned it as a vibrant, artsy haven (with a new, three-story addition) that nods to individuality, craftsmanship, and creative self-expression. ♥

"The goal was never to recreate what had been there before, but to honor the home's history while giving it a new sense of life," Worts notes. "We embraced color, art, and craftsmanship to create a space that feels deeply personal, expressive, and connected to the people who live there."

Some highlights: a sculptural yellow lounge chair and a red-based stone dining table designed by Worts; a third-floor lounge and hot tub terrace offering sweeping city views; and restored brick that calls back to the home's historic DNA. 🏡
